"Elsie!"
Walter Hartman's tone of sorrowful amazement made his young wife spring hastily to her feet. She had not heard him come in, and was kneeling beside a great arm-chair, sobbing as if her heart would break.

"Oh, Walter!" she said, "Aunt Julia — and a fresh burst of sobs interrupted her.

Walter's face cleared. It was not sorrow of her own, then, that overwhelmed this pretty, blue-eyed darling he had married six months before.
"Well, Elsie," he said, taking her in his arms and caressing her, "what about Aunt Julia? Do not sob so, dear; you will make yourself ill."

"The fire!" said Elsie, keeping her sobs somewhat more under control.
"You know I was very much worried when I heard of it, for I could not tell by the papers whether Aunt Julia's house was in the burnt district or not."

For the great Chicago fire was not a week old, and the whole country watched for news.

"Well, dear," said Walter, kindly.
"It is as bad as it can be. Walter, Aunt Julia writes to me that her house was totally destroyed, her very clothing burned up, and her insurance papers not entirely made out. She is absolutely without anything in the world except the clothes she had on. Actually fed by charity. Oh, Walter!"

Here the sobs came again, thick and fast, and Walter could offer no comfort but such as was conveyed by silent caresses. After a time these were so far effective that Elsie could speak more calmly.

"Now, little one," Walter said, "tell me why this troubles you so sorely?
Do you love your aunt so very dearly?"

"She had been everything a mother could be to me since my parents died, Walter. But while I was with her we were very poor. Out of her own scanty means she fed, clothed and educated me until I took the situation of nursery governess to your aunt's children, and married you. But just before we were married, an old friend of Aunt Julia's died in Chicago, and left her ten thousand dollars. When she went to claim her legacy, she saw the house she purchased, and liked it so much she bought it, her legacy covering the expense of the house, lot and furniture, while her own little income would support her. But, unfortunately, she was persuaded to draw out her tiny fortune and invest it in two lots adjoining her house. Now everything is swept away."

"She took care of you when you were a child?"

"For seventeen years, Walter, denying herself to feed and clothe me."

Walter did not speak again for many minutes, holding Elsie close in his arms. At last he said, very gravely:

"If I were a rich man, Elsie, I would not stop to think in a case like this, but say at once 'Bring your aunt here,' but you know, little wife, my salary, though sufficient for all our wants, with a margin for pleasure and saving a nest-egg, is yet not large. If I invite your aunt here, the difference of expense must fall most heavily upon you, because I cannot give you many pleasures you enjoy if I have one more to support. Concerts and jewelry, little gifts and pleasures, will be beyond our means then. But if you will be happier knowing your aunt has a home, I will go myself to Chicago and bring her here."

"Oh, Walter, how kind, how generous you are! I will never be able to thank you."

"Then I am to go. All right. I will get a leave of absence to-morrow.
In the meantime I will telegraph your aunt to meet me at the depot, if she has sent any address."

"The address is the lawyers' who arranged her legacy for her, and who did not live in the burnt district, Morse & Hunter."

A few days later, as fast as steam would carry Walter to Chicago and back, Elsie was waiting to welcome the travelers. A telegram had informed her that Walter had found Julia waiting at the depot and by what train to expect him home. The only spare room in the pretty little house at Harlem, where Walter had brought his bride, was in daily order. Jennie, the servant, was cooking the choicest supper Elsie could devise, and the little wife herself, neatly dressed, was running to the door every minute watching for the carriage.

It came at last, and Walter handed out a lady. Poor Elsie felt fairly sick, as the guest, tottered rather than walked into the room. She was white as ashes, her hair, Elsie remembered black as a coal not one year before, streaked with gray, and her eyes sunken as if with long illness. When the water-proof cloak fell from her shoulders, her shabby dress was most unlike Aunt Julia's habitual neatness. But, the first shock of surprise over, Elsie had no words too loving to welcome her aunt, while soft tender kisses fell fast upon the pale face.

"She is very tired, Elsie," Walter whispered, seeing how vainly the white lips tried to frame words. "Get her to rest, dear, as soon as you can."

So Elsie, tearfully loving, made her aunt lie upon the lounge, and brought her the most tempting of tea-trays, stopping the broken words of thanks by kisses and caresses. Walter, too, by a hundred delicate attentions and few spoken words made the guest feel that she was most cordially and gladly welcomed.

In her own room Aunt Julia told Elsie something of the horrors that had aged her more in one fortnight than in any previous two years of her life. She had slept upon the ground, in a dreaching rain for two nights, then in a tent with no change of clothing, and the memory of the fire terrors to haunt her. She had begged the paper and the stamp to write to Elsie. Then she told of Walter's tender care of her in the long journey, when she, racked by pain, could not speak for hours. How like a son he had cared for her comfort. It was a sad story, and Elsie's tears fell fast.

"But now," she said, "you are at home. I have put underclothes and loose wrappers in here, Auntie, until we can have some dresses fitted. Let me undress you now."

Gently and tenderly the shabby clothes were removed, the weary feet bathed, the gray-streaked hair smoothed, and snowy linen put on for the night. Then, utterly tired, Aunt Julia sank into the bed, whispering:

"Think, Elsie, I have not been in a bed for twelve nights!"

But alas, she was not soon to leave it. The haven of rest once gained, Aunt Julia lay for many long weeks dangerously ill with rheumatic fever brought on by exposure, while the tortured brain, in wildest delirium, raved of scenes that chilled Elsie with horror.

All through these weary weeks Elsie was nurse, while Walter supplied every delicacy that could be found to tempt the invalid, patiently endured the discomforts of a house haunted by sickness, and proved himself, Jennie declared, "the nearest to an angel of any man ever she saw."

Winter was nearly over before Aunt Julia was able to leave her bed, crippled for life. The rheumatism had so twisted the joints of her hands, legs and feet, that they were useless and most of the time intensely painful.
She fretted over the prospect of being a burden upon Walter and Elsie, with all the despair of a proud woman who had always maintained her own independence, and tearfully begged to be sent to some charitable asylum, where she would be only a public expense. Elsie told Walter of this wish, and he went to Aunt Julia's room.

Taking the crippled, helpless hands in his own, holding them very tenderly, he said:

"Aunt Julia, Elsie has told me how hard these little hands worked for her for seventeen long years. I love Elsie so dearly that to grieve her is my greatest sorrow. Do you think I could bear to see her pained if her second mother were sick and alone, nursed by hired hands while we are able and willing to give her love and care? Do not speak again of leaving us. I have not seen Elsie's face so sad as it is to-night since you came to us."

"But, Walter, think. I may live for years."

"I sincerely hope you will."

"And I can never have any use of my hands and feet more than I have now. I can scarcely feed myself or hobble across the room."

"The more reason you should have loving care. Why, and Walter laughed while his honest brown eyes proved his sincerity, "do you think all the love here is Elsie's? I want my share too, auntie, for I love you as well as my wife. I ask you to stay because I want you here, I have not heard Elsie sigh over long, lonely days, since you came."

It took many more loving arguments but at last Aunt Julia yielded. It was but truth that Walter spoke when he said she had won his love as well as Elsie's. She was very patient under excruciating suffering, and very grateful for all the loving care lavished upon her. When the pain subsided, and she could talk, she was charming company, well read and full of pleasant memories and bright observation.

While she felt herself a burden, Walter and Elsie regarded her as a blessing.
Walter no longer worried at leaving Elsie alone all day, while he was at his business, and Elsie never tired of Aunt Julia, whose experience proved very valuable to the little housekeeper.

But month after month there was a scarcely perceptible failing of strength in the sorely tried body, long past youthful vigor. The rheumatic fever had left heart trouble, and distressing spells of suffocation and palpitation often threatened the invalid's life. Always patient, she yet often prayed for death to end her suffering, while Elsie prayed only that the dear life might be spared.

She had been Walter Hartman's guest for two years, when her weakness increased to an alarming extent, rapidly and certainly, till she could not leave her bed. It was while she was herself conscious that the end of her suffering was approaching that she received a letter from her lawyer in Chicago informing her that he had received an offer of twenty thousand dollars for the lots of land she owned in that city.

She had looked upon her own beggary as so absolutely certain that at first she could scarcely credit the news, but Walter, in whose hands she placed the business, soon proved the offer no dream by accepting the terms and informing Aunt Julia the money lay in the bank in her name.

"Now, you can ride in your carriage when you are well," Elsie said, smiling glad, but not for that.

By her own request a lawyer came and wrote her will, and then Aunt Julia, as if the care of life was ended for her, sank rapidly, growing every day weaker and more dependent upon El-sie's loving, never-failing care.

It was in early Spring, when, one evening, as Walter came in, Jennie met him, her honest face all disfigured by crying.

"Sure, sir, it's asking for you, Miss Julia is."

"Is she worse?"

"Ah, sir, she's going fast. The doctor says she'll not last the night."

Going fast, Walter could see the girl's words were true when he softly entered the room where Aunt Julia rested, her head upon Elsie's shoulder, her hands clasped fast in Elsie's.

"I am glad you came," she whispered. "I think I could not go without thanking you once more and saying farewell."

"What I have done," Walter said, his heart swelling with emotion, "was gladly, lovingly done. I do not need thanks, Aunt Julia."

"I believe that, but I am not less grateful, because you gave me a full heart. May God bless you and yours, Walter. May what you have done for a crippled, penniless woman come back to you in your old age laden with her blessing. Kiss me farewell, Walter."

Reverently he bent over her, pressing a loving kiss upon the withered lips, while tears that were no shame to his manhood stood in his eyes. A few broken words to Elsie, a murmured prayer, and the gentle spirit was released from the weary, pain-racked frame.
Tears of true love fell upon the wasted face, placid in death's sleep. Every kind word was cherished when the lips that had spoken it were mute, and Aunt Julia had two true mourners, at her funeral, while many of the friends of years gone by came to pay the last tribute of respect to her memory.

It did not surprise Elsie when she learned that her Aunt Julia had left her the fortune that came too late to gladden her own life. But she told Walter, when the will was read to her:
"I am glad we never thought of the land, Walter, in the years that Aunt Julia was with us. It would have made me hesitate often to show her all the love in my heart, if I had ever thought she would have money to leave me."

"She knew, darling, it was all love, yet I am glad my Elsie has some reward for the patient, tender care that alleviated the suffering of the poor invalid who rest at last."

And Elsie, nestling close in Walter's arms, said softly:
"If I could love you more, Walter, than I did when I married you, I should do so when I think of your kindness and generosity to Aunt Julia."

"It was odd," Walter said, "that the money that Aunt Julia invested in Chicago should be actually doubled, for I have seen her weep often when she spoke of her 'unfortunate investment' of her friend's legacy."

Among the wonders in wool shown this spring, is a camel's hair of domestic creation, in unbleached, undyed tones; woven somewhat after the camel's hair cloths worn by the Arabs of the middle ages, though covered after the Moorish tones of beige or ecru familiar to fashion. This goods in all its susceptible and adaptive varieties is known under the name of the Khayyam specialties.

C. P. Huntington's Butter.

Collis P. Huntington, the railway magnate, years ago kept a general store in Sacramento. One day a trader came in from a mining camp to buy stores, and among other things he wanted butter. Huntington had several tubs brought from Orange county, the famous butter producing region of New York. The miners had all the good things that money would buy, and the storekeeper from the mining camp was bound to take back the best he could find.

"I want some bang-up butter," was the way the storekeeper from the camp signified his desire.

"Well," said Huntington, "here is some all the way from York State, the real genuine Orange county article." Huntington ran the tier down to the bottom of the tub, and the storekeeper ran his nose along it when it was pulled out.

"What's the tax on that grease?" he asked.

"That's thirty-five cents a pound," replied Huntington.

"Hain't you got something a little better?" asked the storekeeper.

"Yes," said Huntington, going to another tub of the very same kind of butter. He knew the storekeeper would not be satisfied if he did not show something better, and he was equal to the occasion. "Here's some for fifty cents," said Huntington as he drew the tier out, and the storekeeper's nose followed it from one end to the other.

"Now, that's a little like it," said the storekeeper, but he added with a wink, 'come now, hain't you got something that the flies won't settle on, something fur-lined and hair-topped? There's nothing too good for us, and we've got the dust to pay for it."

"Yes," again said Huntington, 'Here's something that we don't often bring out.' The tier went down into the third tub of the same lot, and the storekeeper's nose followed the line of butter for the third time.

"How much is she assessed at?" asked the storekeeper, as he looked affectionately on the butter.

"Sixty-five cents a pound."
'You hain't got too much for me,' said the storekeeper.

How He Got an Office.

Office seekers, if they are wise, will profit by this story: A young man from North Carolina went to Washington to secure an appointment. He had a petition, good references and all that sort of thing. He kicked his heels in the ante-rooms and lounged about the hotels for weeks. Somehow the great men were slow, and he failed to get an office. His money was all gone, and it was a desperate case with him. He took the first job that came to hand and went to work on the streets. Some of the great men noticed this. The matter was whispered around until it reached the proper quarter. Then a good, fat office was given to the young man, and he was made happy.

There may be nothing in this story.
It may be that the Washington street commissioner finds laborers scarce and he may have circulated this report in order to get several thousand able-bodied hands. And even if true it may turn out like the story of the good little boy who picked up a pin in a store and was forthwith given a clerkship. It will be recollected that after the publication of the incident all the stores in the country were crowded with little boys picking up pins.

Important to Scientists.

"Just look at this coin. It is more than a hundred years old," remarked Mrs. Yergler to Kosciuszko Murphy.
"That's nothing. I've got one at home that's a great deal older than that. It's more than two thousand years old."

"Look here. When you lie, why don't you lie so it will sound probable.
Don't you know it is utterly impossible for a coin to be two thousand years old?" observed Mrs. Yergler, pleasantly.

"Why is it impossible?"
"Because this is only eighteen hundred and eighty-five. In fifteen or twenty years from now you may have a coin two thousand years old. A coin could not have been made before the beginning of time."—Texas Siftings.

Closing Doors.

Any one recovering from a severe fit of illness, with overstrained or shattered nerves, that respond instantly to any sudden noise, will appreciate the following from an exchange:

"Doors are what we have to deal with all our lives, and yet nineteen people out of every twenty make a noise closing every door they go through. Physicians have not yet learned that they disturb the patient they are trying to quiet by closing the door noisily when they enter or leave the house or room. It is perfectly easy to close a door quietly, yet few people make it a practice to do so until some one in the house is ill, and even then it is often forgotten. The patient that for days and nights has been ill and has had no rest is finally relieved from pain, and is quietly sleeping. If there is nothing to disturb him, some hours of refreshing sleep may be expected, giving the rest and strength so much needed; but someone, forgetful of the needed carefulness, closes the door with a slam, and the patient starts with every nerve quivering, not only losing the much needed sleep, but having to suffer from a sudden awakening, so hard for a weak person to bear. If people would practice and teach care in closing doors, until it became their habit to do so, no one need suffer from this one of the unnecessary noises."

A Great Organ.

The organ made by the Rosevelts for the cathedral built by the widow of A.
T. Stewart at Garden City, L. I., is the most extensive instrument of the kind in the world. It has 115 stops and 7-252 pipes, and cost $100,000. Most of it is set in an octagonal chamber made by the angle where the transept and chancel walls join, fifteen feet in diameter, and extending from the basement floor upward to a distance of forty feet.
A remarkable feature is its construction so as to distribute the sounds in four different parts of the cathedral at once, all remaining under control of the player at the main organ. The four divisions are classified as follows: Chancel, fifty-four stops; tower, thirty-eight stops; chapel, fifteen stops; echo, eight stops.

Steam power is employed in inflating the bellows. There are double engines of ten horse power beneath the chancel division to supply it with compressed air, and the speed is governed as far as possible, by the rise and fall of the bellows. In the room beneath the vestibule, directly under the tower division, is a single engine of ten horse power.
The greatest novelty is the electric chime action, by which thirteen bells in the organ tower are played from the solo manual. The bells are rung with the same force and precision as though struck in usual manner, and may be rung in connection with the music that is played on the organ. The organ cases, made in Philadelphia, are magnificent specimens of carving in decorated English Gothic, profusely enriched.

Washington's Argument.

Speaking of two legislative bodies as against one, there is no better illustration than the story that is told by the great French publicist, Laboulaye, of Washington and Jefferson. Jefferson was taking tea with the father of his country, and, having recently returned from France, was talking of the legislative chamber. Washington listened with interest to the end, and then said:
'You have just shown the superior advantage of the two-chamber system of legislation.'

'How is that?' asked Jefferson.
'Why, you have poured your tea out of your cup into your saucer to cool.'

It is said that the argument was considered a powerful one with Jefferson.

He Boomed Too Hard.

A Detroit firm employed a new collector a few days ago, and among other bills he was given one which had long been classed under the head of 'doubtful.' He was informed that the chances of his getting anything were extremely dubious, but was promised half of all he could collect. In two hours after starting out he was back with the money on the doubtful bill, and when asked how he succeeded so well he replied:
'After getting into his office I locked the door, pocketing the key, and told him he'd either got to come down or I'd break every bone in his body. He shelled out and both of us are $10 ahead.'

The next day the firm paid $75 to settle a case of extorting money by threats of violence, and the collector was kindly informed that he could have a half vacation for the benefit of his health.—

Black lace toilets are extremely fashionable.

Black is always much worn in summer as well as in winter.

The black silk remains the most useful and most convenient of toiles.

Black lace jackets are revived, and are now made of piece lace, cut with darts and side forms precisely as basques are.

Embroidered net and embroidered tulle are novelties which have speedily become an indispensable part of dressmaking and millinery resources.

Spring costumes, in general, of great simplicity. Even when there are two skirts, the arrangement is much less elaborate than a few months ago.

Deutelle-de-laine—that is, woolen lace—is very fashionable for trimming costumes or fancy woolen material and mantles to match; it is to be had in all colors.

Children's costumes are very much trimmed with this style of lace.

Velvetees too, retain their popularity for walking and general service suits.

Combination costumes of the broche and plain varieties of the Nonpareil brand made from models in Le Monde Elegant, are de rigueur for the devotees of style.

As a costume for traveling, a dust defying fabric carrying in its surface the sesame to supremest style, there is nothing like the poplin of the period.

Black and white lace toilets seem to be worn now at all seasons of the year and by ladies of all ages. They are made upon a thin silk foundation, and the latest styles are very simple in design.

The bills of General Grant's doctors are said to amount to $40,000.

ENGLAND is in a stew. Since Gladstone has stepped down and out, the new cabinet finds itself in a perplexing position on many important points and now they want the kind advice and assistance of the retired minister. Gladstone, however, hesitates and wants time to think over it.

Will Introduce Another.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—In an interview to-day Representative Morrison, of Illinois, said he proposed introducing another tariff bill in the next Congress, and that it would provide for about the same reduction in amount as was provided in his last bill.

GENERAL Grant, whose condition of health has in the last few weeks taken a worse turn, and who was brought to the cool and invigorating heights of Mount McGregor, near Saratoga, is said to be slightly improving. His voice is becoming somewhat stronger and he passes quiet nights. The people all over the country seem to anxiously watch the changes of his disease and all unite in wishing back his full health.

In speaking of the new marriage license law in this state the Philada. Times gives its opinion of the merits of said law as follows:

The New Marriage Law.

We give in to-day's paper the full text of the act regulating marriages in this State in the hands of Governor Pattison. It is reasonable to assume that he will give it his approval, and thus throw its much needed restraints around the homes of Pennsylvania.

It has been assumed by several of our contemporaries that this journal was in error in stating that the new statute would end informal marriages, but a careful study of the text seems to fully warrant the interpretation given in these columns. The first section declares "that from and after the 1st day of October, 1885, no person within the Commonwealth shall be joined in marriage until a license shall have been obtained," etc. As any form of marriage, however informal, is being "joined in marriage," there does not appear to be any exception to the rule of the new statute. This interpretation is apparently confirmed by the special provision for license where "the parties intend solemnizing their marriages themselves." They are also required to obtain a license and furnish their own certification of their act for record in the Orphan's Court.

The obvious intent of the new law, therefore, seems to be that there can be no lawful marriage in this State after the 1st of October next—assuming that the Governor shall approve the act—without a special license obtained from the Clerk of the Orphan's Court of the proper county. True, there is no special nullity clause in the new act, such as there is in the State of Kentucky; but like license laws in several States, without any special nullity clause, have been held by their Supreme Courts as meaning that all informal marriages are null and void. The clear intent of the law-making power is that hereafter all marriages in this State shall be ceremonial, at least to the extent of the contracting parties obtaining a license and filing their certificate of record, and there will be safety only in obedience to the wise provisions of the statute.

Hay's Pluck.

What Leads to the Many Reports of Mr. Hay's Early Resignation.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Mr. Malcolm Hay, the First Assistant Postmaster General, has such a feeble appearance that his numerous visitors generally remark on leaving him that he is a very sick man. This gives rise to frequent rumors that he will soon resign. It may be stated that the situation is just this: Mr. Hay is in feeble health, but he hopes to gain strength, and as long as he can attend to the duties of his office, as he is doing at present, he proposes to remain. How much longer he will continue the present experiment he refuses to say, and the Postmaster General states that he is ignorant of the intentions of his first assistant. Mr. Hay is showing a great deal of pluck and determination in fighting against disease and physical weakness.

Miscellaneous News.

The Terrible Colliery Disaster.

LONDON, June 19.—It is now known that 140 persons were killed by the explosion in the Pendlebury Colliery, near Manchester, yesterday. The chamber in which the explosion occurred is so filled with debris that thus far only 45 bodies have been recovered.

Pine Camp Meeting.

The 14th annual session of Pine Camp Meeting will commence August 18, 1885 and continue ten days. The rent of tents is $5.00 for lower floor, $4.00 for upper floor, or $7.00 if one party takes both lower and upper tents. Necessary groceries and boarding on the grounds. Boarding for term, $6.00; per day, $1.00; per meal, 40c; children between the age of 3 and 9 years, half price. The usual excursion tickets will be issued. For further information apply to John A. Robb, Lock Haven, Pa.

Crop and Business Prospects.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—Reports of the crop and business condition, made to Dun's Commercial Agency in this city, from Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia indicate that the limit of the commercial depression has been reached. There seems to be nothing insuperable in the way of good crops of almost everything except winter wheat. The farmers have been economizing and now need all manner of implements with which to cultivate the soil. As soon as they see a sure market for the growing crops they will begin to buy. The interchange of commodities and cash thus produced will go more to revive business than a big wheat crop. The resumption to the iron industries will assist in the return of confidence to the hearts of all who till and toil.

His First and Last Ascension.

An Aeronaut's Balloon Ignites and Collapses and He is Dashed to a Shapeless Mass.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., June 19.—Among other attractions at a circus here to-day was a balloon ascension, and just as the ropes holding the balloon were cast off a hot-air stove, used in inflating the balloon, was overturned, causing it to catch fire. The burning balloon shot up into the air at a very rapid rate, with William Patterson, an aeronaut, in the basket. When a short distance up the crowd yelled, "Jump," but he did not heed the advice, and after going up several hundred feet, the balloon collapsed, and Patterson fell to the earth a lifeless mass of humanity. It was his first ascension. The balloon was totally consumed by fire.

Crop Destroyers.

Hessian Flies, Grasshoppers, and Potato Bugs, in Lehigh and Northampton.

EASTON, June 18.—The Hessian fly has made its appearance in Lehigh county and in part of Northampton, after an absence of several years. The flies are making sad havoc with the growing crops in several places, and the indications are that the wheat will be greatly damaged.

Last year the potato bugs appeared in such small numbers that the farmers congratulated themselves upon the prospect of the early total disappearance of the pest, but it now appears that this hope is not to be realized. The bugs have appeared in both counties this year in greater numbers than before, and, as a consequence, they are a scourge of potato growers. Many farmers are using spirits of ammonia instead of Paris green, and believe it is as effective as a destructive agency as the latter. The proportion of ammonia is two spoonsful to a gallon of water.

Arrival of the Bartholdi Statue.

The French vessel "Isere," from Rouen, bearing the long-expected Bartholdi Statue of Liberty, arrived at New York on Tuesday night, June 16th. On the following morning the United States steamer Omaha received the visitor with full honors, yards manned and bunting spread. The numerous pleasure crafts in the lower bay also were full-dressed for the occasion and vied with each other in paying their respects to the stranger. The statue committee hailed the vessel and were invited on board by the commandant, Lespinasse de Saune. The officers and sailors of the Isere received General Stone with marked courtesy. After a few hurried words of introduction and greeting the party proceeded to the commandant's cabin, where the necessary formalities were observed.

When General Stone emerged from the commandant's cabin he had the document of transfer, which was in a morocco-covered case, in his hand. On the left hand corner of the parchment was a picture representing the statue as it will appear when completed and on the other side were the pictures of Washington and Lafayette. A public reception in honor of the French guests was given on Friday.

To Physicians.

We do not find fault, reproach or condemn the practice of any regular physician—this is not our mission—but we do claim that if he were to add PERUNA to his prescriptions, as directed in our book on the "Ills of Life," (and furnished gratuitously by all druggists), he would cure all his patients.

Mr. Henry C. Reynolds, Ironton, Lawrence County, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been sorely distressed for many years. Her disease or diseases and the symptoms of them have been so varied that an attempt to describe them would be more than I feel able to undertake. I have paid over a thousand (1,000) dollars for doctors and medicines for her, without any satisfactory results. We read so much about your PERUNA that I was forced to try it. She has now taken five bottles; they have done her more good than all the doctors and medicines that she has ever made use of. PERUNA is certainly a God-send to humanity."

Mrs. O. L. Gregory, Las Vegas, San Miguel County, New Mexico, writes: "I think PERUNA and MANALIN saved my life." Mrs. Cora Engel, First House on La-zelle street, near Rich, Columbus, Ohio, says: "It affords me much pleasure to state to you the benefit I have received from your PERUNA. I had been troubled with kidney complaint and dizziness in my head for eighteen years. I tried different kinds of patent medicines, and consulted a number of physicians, but received no benefit whatever. About three weeks ago I commenced taking PERUNA. I began to get better before I had taken half a bottle. The dizziness has disappeared, and the other affection has so much improved that I am positive, after I will have taken another bottle, I will be entirely well. I feel like a different person already. A number of my friends have used it, and they think it is a wonderful remedy. My husband says it is one of the best medicines for a cough that he ever took."

A. W. Blackburn, Wooster, O., writes: "Several weeks ago a man came to me, all broken down, terribly nervous, stomach without any power to digest food. Had tried four doctors; none did him any good. Asked me to do something for him. I recommended MANALIN. He told me to-day that he has been taking it regularly, and is now almost well. Said he would sound the praises of MANALIN far and near."

—More people, adults and children, are troubled with costiveness than with any other ailment. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters will cure costiveness and prevent the diseases which result from it.

—A BUTTER CHURN with "bock," good as new, can be bought cheap for cash. Inquire at this office.

LOOK HERE.—I cure Piles. I have a positive remedy for piles. By its use many cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. It cures as if by magic. Money refunded to dissatisfied patients. Address, H. K. SUMMERS, Aaronsburg, Pa.

CHILDREN'S DAY.—Children's Day will be properly observed in the Evangelical church at Millheim next Sabbath, June 28th. The exercises will consist of singing, responsive reading and addresses by Rev. S. M. Mountz, Rev. C. F. Deininger and the superintendent, D. L. Zerby. Exercises begin at 2 p. m. All are invited to attend.

—Picnics at the Penns Caves, near Farmers' Mills, are quite frequent occurrences. Nearly every fair Saturday some party or organization spend the day there by picnicking. Last Saturday the Farmers' Mills band held a festival and picnic there and our townsman, Wm. M. Hartman, who was in attendance, reports a good and profitable time.

—Deininger's Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book is growing in public favor. Customers from a distance are beginning to call for it. It is an admitted necessity for every tax-payer who does his business in a practical manner. It is arranged to last for ten years and sells at the low price of 40 cents. Call and see it at the JOURNAL Store.

—Just got in a new lot of White Dress Goods at Kauffman's Store.

—On Saturday landlord Frain dissected his 34lb. turtle and in the evening dished up a fine supper consisting of turtle soup, cherries, &c. The band whom he had invited to play in honor of the occasion was treated to this delicious repast.

—B. O. Deininger left home on Monday morning for Gettysburg, to attend the annual meeting of the Seminary Board, of which he is a member. He expects to stop at Carlisle, Abbottstown, East Berlin and York before he returns, which will be about beginning of next week. We wish him a pleasant journey. Meanwhile the Journal Book & Stationery store is left in our care.

—A Crowover, Saulsbury, Pa., writes: "J. A. McDonald.

Dear Sir:—Your Liver Pills are giving good satisfaction here and there is quite a demand springing up for them. Please send me three dozen boxes at once, as I am out and one of my customers won't have any other."

Comment needless. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded. JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO., Philadelphia Agents.

Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

FESTIVAL.—The undersigned would respectfully inform the public that they will hold a festival in the town hall at Millheim on Friday and Saturday, July 24th and 25th, at which ICE CREAM, CAKES & LEMONADE will be served in the best manner. The proceeds are to go for the benefit of the unfinished Ev. church and they extend a cordial invitation to all to attend and patronize the festival.

EV. LADIES' MITE SOCIETY.

—A letter from Dr. C. Sumner Musser to his parents at Aaronburg states that he completed his sea voyage the next day from the date of his letter, (June 11th) and reports a very pleasant trip, unmarred by any sea sickness or mishaps. This is good news to his parents as well as to his many friends whose good wishes accompanied the gentleman on his journey over the wild waves. The letter was written on board of ship at Flushing, about a day's journey from the haven of Antwerp.

TWO ACCIDENTS.—On Wednesday evening of last week at Grenninger's saw mill, which is at present operating on Gentzel's tract in Penn township, Mr. Luther Shreckengast had the misfortune to come in too close contact with the circular saw and had a deep gash cut in his arm at the wrist.

The following evening, Mr. Jacob Steiger, working on the same mill had some of his toes smashed by the fall of some heavy timbers. The injured parties are doing as well as can be expected under such circumstances.

—A BOTTLE of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial should occupy the handy corner of every traveller's satchel. No prudent person will think of undertaking a journey involving changes of climate, diet and water, without first procuring a bottle. It never fails! It never disappoints! Money refunded in every case when a single bottle, as directed, fails to cure any case of cholera, dysentery, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation. Sold by all dealers.

—The farmers of Penns and Brush valleys will be pleased to learn that the Steam Thresher owned and operated by Mr. Geo. W. Vonado, of Madisonburg, Pa. will again be ready to give the almost unbounded satisfaction that marked its last years' performance. Farmers should be careful what machines they get, as the best is always the cheapest. Some machines will waste more grain than will pay the cost of threshing, while this machine not only saves all the grain but also cleans it better than any other. Farmers, give it a trial and you will have no other.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS.—You may only owe us a dollar or two on subscription, and think that isn't much—we could easily get along without that little sum. Of course it isn't much, but the trouble is, there are too many subscribers who think in the same way and the little sums soon swell to a considerable figure. If we had these small amounts in our pockets instead of in the books we could run this printing establishment with less worry and vexation. Our subscribers, especially out of the county, who owe us will please give heed to this item and remember that every little helps.

—Main street at present receives its full share of improvements. S. T. Frain laid a splendid flagstone pavement in front of his hotel and the building and its new portico will shortly be treated to a few coats of paint of a light shade.

Dr. S. G. Gutelius greatly bettered the appearance of his residence by a coat of pure white paint, pleasantly contrasted by bright green shutters.

W. S. Musser is repainting the Musser House, which will give it its former clean and tasty appearance. There are still other places along that thoroughfare, that are very much in need of an overhauling, and we would gladly report progress in the improvement line in future issues.

—The four greatest and most desirable properties of a successful medicine are perfectly combined in McDonald's Blood Purifier or Sarsaparilla Alternative. In malassimilation of food and dyspepsia its effects are speedy and happy. For disfiguring humors of scrofula and tetter, the loathsome sores of venereal diseases, the burning torturers of erysipelas, no other medicine can possibly equal it. As a spring medicine, perfect blood purifier, efficient and safe diuretic and aperient, it meets with gratifying favor from the medical profession and the people. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—AN ORDINANCE to forbid the use of fireworks and firearms of any kind within the built-up portions of town on the Fourth of July:

Be it ordained by the Town Council of the Borough of Millheim, and it is hereby ordained by authority of the same, that the last clause of section 31 of the ordinances of April 21, 1879, reading as follows: "or upon the 4th of July of any year" be and the same is hereby repealed. J. H. MAIZE, D. L. ZERBY, Sec. Prest.

Approved: A. C. MUSSER, Millheim, June 13th, 1885. Chief Bur.

—There is something nice about Roller flour, that you do not find in flour made in a Grist mill. In order to supply the people of Penns and Brush valleys with this superior article, Major J. B. Fisher, of Penn Hall, has fitted up his mill at Farmers' Mills with the best and most renowned roller process in the country. He has procured the celebrated Allis Rolls for his flouring mill and besides has furnished the establishment with the most complete set of mill machinery to be found anywhere. If you wish to buy choice roller flour, that can not easily be beat, send or give your orders to J. B. Fisher's Roller Flouring Mill, where they are now ready for business. See new advertisement in another column.

—Druggists as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not know from personal knowledge to be a meritorious article. They all agree, however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, and effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desirable vermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—The Bellefonte Daily News of Monday says:

So far as we know, the excursion train to Lewisburg on Fourth of July will consist of twenty cars. This will be sufficient to accommodate 600 people comfortably. The price of the excursion will be $1. The train will start promptly at 6 o'clock, and go over the new road. Arriving at Lewisburg about 9 o'clock, seven hours will be spent there and the train will start for Bellefonte at 4 o'clock.

—The following list of industrial representations will form one of the sections of the great parade which will take place at Lewisburg in the forenoon of the Fourth of July. Taking into consideration all the other different parts of the procession, such as bands, fire companies, military companies, &c., we may venture to say that it will be a grand display and will do credit to Lewisburg's centennial festivities:

No. 1. Representing an old Dutch Oven, and a range of present style.

No. 2. Represented by the Butchers.

No. 3. Representing an old lady knitting, and another one knitting by machine.

No. 4. A old lady sewing by hand and one by machine.

No. 5. Representing old and present shoe business.

No. 6. Blacksmith with forge and bellows making nails.

No. 7. Nail making by machine. Here follow two men carrying scythes, to be followed by a mowing machine; then follows a hay rake; then two men with sickles, two with grain cradles, two with hand rakes; then follows a self-raking reaper, then a self binder.

No. 8. Two men threshing with flails. Then follows a traction engine drawing a threshing machine and clover huller.

No. 9. Planing lumber by hand on work bench.

No. 10. Planing lumber by Power.

No. 11. Representing old Ludwig Derr Mill.

No. 12. Crayon picture of Buffalo steam mill.

No. 13. Steam powerprinting press.

No. 14. Bearing an old Washington Printing Press. Both presses engaged printing the history of Lewisburg. Here follows a copy for distribution.

No. 15. Ancient portraits and present style photography.

No. 16. Water works, pump and stand pipe.

The paper printed and distributed to the public shall be entitled "Lewisburg Centennial Paper."

Old, but Good.

The Cincinnati Gazette a number of years ago published a good story on a distinguished lawyer named Benham, of that city. He was a fine orator, but much given to a display of his vast classical learning. In a murder trial he warned the jury to not allow public opinion, which was against his client, to influence the verdict. In concluding his appeal he said: "Gentlemen of the jury, give up; drop all feeling in this important matter, and be like the ancient Roman in his adherence to the truth, who in his defense eloquently declared: 'Amicus Cato, amicus Plauto, amicus Cicero, sed major veritas' [I am a friend to Cato a friend of Plauto, a friend of Cicero, but a greater friend to truth.] The papers the next morning reported the eloquent lawyer as having 'closed his great speech to the jury by finally saying: 'I may cuss Cato, I may cuss Plauto, I may cuss Cicero, said Major Veritas.'

This is something similar to a story that has been going the rounds of the press concerning General Sherman. He was walking along the streets of St. Louis with a friend and was very pleasantly accosted by a gentleman whom the general did not quite remember. The gentleman, seeing how it was, said in a low voice: "Don't you remember me, I make your shirts." "Oh, yes," replied the general, smiling, then turning to his friend, said: "Colonel—allow me to introduce my friend, Major Schurtz."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's SORREL EXTRACT FOR CHILDREN TEething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's SORREL EXTRACT FOR CHILDREN TEething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Moral Suasion.

It was a pleasant town in the Genesee valley that a party of boys made night, or the early part of it, hideous to the residents of a quiet street. Particularly afflicted by the uproar of the urchins was a good woman, who was at her wits end to discover any feasible method of relief. From sad experience she knew that entreaties were in vain and that scoldings were worse than useless, as applied to the juvenile roisterers. Finally, in sheer desperation, she hit upon a happy expedient. Calling the boys to her door, she said: "Now, boys, if you will go quietly away and not make any noise, I'll give you all the apples you can eat." They greedily assented to the terms of the compromise, and filled their selves with the proffered fruit. That night the ingenious lady slept the sleep of the just; but, to her horror and amazement, the following evening the small boys again mustered in force in front of her house, with lungs redoubled in energy by the slight rest they had taken. "Boys," she cried, in the shrill falsetto of despair; "after your promise of last night, what do you mean by again disturbing me in this way?" "More apples," was all they said.

The Millheim Marble Works are turning out some very fine work. The yard is full to repletion of excellent monuments and headstones of beautiful and chaste design. Mr. A. C. Musser, the proprietor is an expert mechanic and a square man to deal with while his prices can not be undersold anywhere.

What He Struck.

Three years ago an Ohio man began boring for oil. Plenty of people told him that he wasn't within 100 miles of an oil belt, but he set up a derrick, and bored and drilled, and hung on. When he got done boring in one spot he tried another, and it was not until October of last year that he stopped for good. "Well, Uncle John, what have you accomplished with all your boring and drilling?" "Well," answered the old man, as he crossed his hands on the small of his back, "I've discovered that when you bore a hole through three farms the end of the drill comes out right in the poorhouse door. I've struck it plumb-center."
